Becoming a parent is exciting, but it can also bring big changes, new challenges and plenty of uncertainty — and there's no handbook to guide you. Many parents want information, reassurance and support, but it's not always obvious where to find it.

That's why Knowing Works wants to hear from you.

The Best Start Family Voice network will support local parents, carers, and guardians to share real experiences of support from pregnancy through to early childhood.

With your help and insight, Knowing Works will shape the support offered through Suffolk's Best Start approach — a plan focused on giving every child the strongest foundations for learning and development by the age of five.

Sign up to hear from the network now at https://www.smartsurvey.co.uk/t/Suffolk-Family-Hubs/. There's no specific time commitment - you can get as involved as you like, and for as long as you like.

Knowing works will contact you with news about local support for parents and ways you could help shape the information and support available to parents like you. This could include taking part in surveys, meetings, focus groups or other opportunities.

Best Start Family Hubs are on the way - and you can shape the support they will offer

A key part of this work is to inform the launch of Best Start Family Hubs across Suffolk.

Building on Suffolk's existing Family Hubs services, these Best Start Family Hubs will bring together services and activities supporting family life and child development in one welcoming place, making it easier for families to get early, joined-up support.

They will aim to offer welcoming spaces where all families feel comfortable asking for help.

Knowing Works is hosting this network on behalf of Suffolk County Council as it works with local people and partners to introduce the Best Start offer and service in Suffolk.

By sharing your experiences, you can help to ensure Best Start Family Hubs — and wider support for families — truly reflects what parents need.
